THAT DEMOCRATIC MACHINE.

IT IS more important to build up the Democratic machine than to safeguard the interests of the industrial commission, according to the latest reports from Carson City, which vouch for the appointment of the governor's private secretary as chairman of that body. Andy Stinson, state mine inspector, was the only man with gumption enough to register a protest against the appointment. In his official capacity Mr. Stinson represents the largest and most influential industrial element in the state that annually adds $25,000,000 to the wealth of Nevada. As spokesman for this interest which saved the nation by pouring hundreds of millions of dollars into the lap of Columbia to defray the cost of the civil war, Mr. Stinson is entitled to more consideration than he received. He insisted on the governor appointing a man who was familiar with the work of the commission, as he felt it was his duty to look after the miners whose sole insurance in a majority of cases, comes from the Nevada Industrial Commission. These men are elated by underwriters as extra hazardous risks, and they find it almost impossible to carry individual insurance against accidents. When they lose their lives or meet with casualties their families look to the state for the indemnity which they justly deserve. This compensation is based on the average of accidents incurred in the properties accepting the state industrial rating and therefore it is eminently proper that these men should have something to say about the qualifications of the man who presides over and directs the destinies of the fund. The governor does not take this into consideration for he appointed a successor to John J. Mullin with the sole object of strengthening his political fences. Mr. Stinson demanded that the appointee should be an actuary who has had some experience in this specialty, but the chief executive of the state who has ambitions to succeed himself, thought the workmen of Nevada would be just as well pleased with one of the kitchen cabinet transplanted from the governor's office. The miners will rejoice that Mr. Stinson acted as he did and will admire his manhood in standing out for a non-partisan appointment, when so much was staked on the administration of the office of the industrial commission. It is a safe wager that Andy Stinson stands a much better show of succeeding himself than the man who would not listen to his pleadings for justice.

SLANDERING NEVADA.

THE boosting spirit evidently is not part of the curriculum of the University of Nevada, or else the young men who are in charge of the official organ of that institution have weird ideas of how to uphold the name of their native state. One of the leading dailies of the middle west recently published, under the head of "1917 Model," extracts from half a dozen influential rural papers, including some of the best university productions, a quarter of a column of doggerel, consisting of seven verses of four lines each from the Jackson, Ia., Sentinel; Morrison, Ill., Times; Hawarden, Ia., Chronicle; South Dakota Volante; The Student, University of North Dakota; Ohio Agricultural Barometer and lastly the Sagebrush of the University of Nevada. The latter organ could not think of anything more fitting than to perpetuate the scandalous libel that has done more than all other influences to retard the growth and expansion of Reno, in the following verse:

"When your ambish
 Is satisfied,
 Just come down here
 And get untied."

That is the silly stuff that hurts this state. Every legislature has tried to wipe out the stain by proving that the divorce business in Nevada is no worse than anywhere else and that, as a matter of fact, there is a score of cities larger and more notorious than Reno for the facilities afforded in getting an easy divorce. The best people of Reno have expostulated with the legal element that thrives on the business, and the churches have gone on record against the constantly parading of this outrageous libel on the state, but their efforts have been wasted, judging from the appearance of the miserable paragraph in the official organ of the state university. Of course, the offense was thoughtless, nevertheless it stands as a libel that cannot be controverted, since it is given with a semi-official sanction in the columns of a publication that is supposed to have the backing of the people of Nevada. The campaign of misrepresentation has gone too far with Nevada, and it is about time that a stop should be put to the brainless system of keeping up a subject that has been hackneyed and abused sever since the perpetration of the song "I'm on My Way to Reno." The youths of the university of Nevada should be taught that Nevada is not the "Land that God Forgot," and that decency and honor are as prevalent here as they are in more venerable communities and districts.

The Chicago patriot who threw a doctor out of his house because he said a child patient was suffering from German measles, has inflicted a new curse on the country as the alleged funny paragraphs have taken the subject and localized it in every town of the county, even in Tonopah, where it was plagiarized without any credit.

Let 'er go, Boliver. Bolivia swatted the German monster without batting an eye. That country is safe from invasion and can afford to be cheerful in hurling defiance at a foreign foe since the best part of it is in altitudes ranging from 10,000 to 14,000 feet above sea level.

Chile will complete the South American triumvirate by perfecting the A. B. C. chain. It is not generally known that Chile is blessed with a lot of red Irish blood, as some of her most successful naval commanders bore such names as Lynch, O'Higgins, Cochran and Pratt, descendants of the old stock that fought and won independence for that nation.

Kaiser Wilhelm is reported to have quit Germany for a sanatorium in Holland. From reading recent reports from the western front it looks more like Germany was going to quit the kaiser.

This is an off year for crowned heads. They are selling at a discount and is somebody doesn't look out there will be a shake-up in Austria and Prussia growing out of the success in Russia.

"Frame-ups" are not materializing fast as part of the defence of the preparedness parade dynamiters of San Francisco any more than they did with the dynamiters of the Los Angeles Times.

Grand Duke Boris has been interned in the royal prison with his cousin, the czar. He will miss the cold bottles and the "squabs" which made his name a stench in the nostrils of Europe.

Argentina has its dander up and will probably hook up with Brazil.

BASEBALL GAMES

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, April 16.—With the country at war and notwithstanding unfavorable weather, the 1917 baseball season got away to a good start.

The first week ended with two teams, New York and Philadelphia, tied for first place in the National League, and four, Boston, Cleveland, Chicago and Washington, scrambling for first place in the American.

For the first time in 15 years, Hans Wagner did not appear in the Pittsburgh line-up. The great shortstop is reported to have quit the game. During the week, Third Baseman Baker, of the New York Americans, sustained an injured hand, which will keep him out of several weeks play.

Gleotte of the Chicago Americans, hurled the first no-hit, no-run game of the major league season in defeating St. Louis.

Indianapolis with five straight victories and no defeats, is leading in the American Association.
